New AI fake text generator may be too dangerous to release, say creators

The Elon Musk-backed nonprofit company OpenAI declines to release research publicly for fear of misuse

The creators of a revolutionary AI system that can write news stories and works of fiction - dubbed “deepfakes for text” - have taken the unusual step of not releasing their research publicly, for fear of potential misuse.

OpenAI, an nonprofit research company backed by Elon Musk, Reid Hoffman, Sam Altman, and others, says its new AI model, called GPT2 is so good and the risk of malicious use so high that it is breaking from its normal practice of releasing the full research to the public in order to allow more time to discuss the ramifications of the technological breakthrough.

AI vs Humans

AI complements human creativity

Artists and designers must learn to co-create with AI tools

Summary

Many types of AI in multimedia creation

Generative AI is constrained by engines, presets, quotas, queue times and upscaling limits

AI allows text-to-image, text-to-audio, text-to-video, photo-to-video and more

Deepfakes and auto-editing are making video productions easier

Deepfakes, copyright ownership and general safety bring many ethical concerns

Must learn to co-create with AI tools
